Annual GMP

Updating is the key to success in life science

Get documentation of maintained GMP knowledge, insight into current GMP trends, and the opportunity to exchange experience with colleagues from life science.

In a GMP-regulated company, all relevant employees are required to complete regular refreshers on GMP requirements. In this course, you will get a brush-up on the rules, so it is clear what the requirements are and how you ensure compliance in everyday work.

By participating in this course, you will gain:

- Documentation that you maintain your GMP knowledge
- Clarity on the requirements for day-to-day compliance
- Insight into what is happening within GMP

We focus on current topics such as documentation, good documentation practice, deviations and CAPA, production, cross-contamination, as well as GMP mindset and quality culture.

You will gain a strong understanding of your responsibilities in daily practice and the necessity of complying to ensure the right product quality. We review trends in life science so you get an idea of authorities' focus areas and experiences.

The course also offers the opportunity to exchange knowledge and experience with colleagues from life science.

This course can also be delivered on-site at your company – see here.

The course language is English.

In this course, you will meet:

Louise Schou Petersen, Education Consultant, Pharmakon
