Annual GMP

Update is key to success in life science

You will calibrate your knowledge of GMP rules, and we will focus on the GMP mindset and the authorities' requirements so you ensure compliance in everyday life.

In a GMP-regulated company, there are requirements that all relevant employees must undergo regular refresher training on GMP requirements.

In this course, you will get a brush-up on the rules, so it is clear to you what the requirements are and how you ensure compliance in everyday life.

By participating in this course, you will get:

- Documentation that you maintain your GMP knowledge
- Clarity about the requirements in relation to compliance in everyday life
- Insight into what is happening within GMP

We will focus on topics such as documentation, good documentation practices, deviations and CAPA, production, cross-contamination and prevention using barriers and controls, as well as GMP mindset and quality culture.

You will gain a good understanding of your responsibility in daily practice and the necessity of complying to ensure the right product quality. We will review trends from life science so you get an idea of the authorities' focus and experiences.

In the course, there is an opportunity to exchange knowledge and experiences with colleagues from life science.

This course can also be moved to the company - see here

In this course, you will meet:

Mette Maria Juul Sørensen, Education Consultant, Pharmakon
